

DRAFT PRESS RELEASE: 20TH MARCH 2006

BeA FASTENING SYSTEMS LIMITED DRIVES TOOL SAFETY

In a move which underpins BeA Fastening Systems Limited's commitment to striving for manufacturing excellence, the UK's largest supplier of collated industrial fastenings has fostered a link with Jomaro Training to drive health and safety standards in the workplace.

Thanks to the joint initiative, an industry recognised qualification for the safe use of portable power tools is available in the UK for the first time. BeA now has the facility to offer and grant the City and Guilds approved course which provides accredited training in the safe use of portable pneumatic and gas powered tools.

The course content includes risk assessment (identifying potential hazards and risks), preventative procedures to reduce the risk of hand-arm vibration, identification and selection of appropriate personal protective equipment, pre and post use checks in the safe operation of hand operated power tools and concludes with a practical assessment centred on the application of safe working methods.

The course is the only approved course on offer in the UK and is delivered throughout 16 centres across the country.

"With over 90-years experience in the design and supply of fastening solutions and ongoing investment in product development, the company is a pioneer when it comes to tool technology and all products are carefully engineered with operator safety and comfort in mind,” commented Dave Meakin, UK Sales Manager, BeA Fastening Systems Limited. “This unique partnership is a natural progression and the new qualification will provide a benchmark for health and safety standards.”

BeA Fastening Systems Limited is at the forefront of fastening applications and has a substantial track record when it comes to performance, product longevity and customer support. For further details concerning the course, please contact the BeA sales office on 0800 0935154.
